

DONATION STATION

We give your old vape batteries a second lease of life, by transforming them into devices to help refugees! Bring your batteries here to be upcycled and help refugees at the same time!

We build personal power banks for refugees to recharge their phones so they can keep in contact with loved ones back home. We also use second hand vape batteries to make USB heating pads to keep people warm during the cold winter nights. Both these are lifesaving services and your old vape batteries can help us provide them to people!

Our aim is to use the principles of recycling (or upcycling) to develop new green technologies to help refugees caught up in humanitarian crises. We believe that environmental issues and human issues are one and the same and work to find common solutions to modern situations.

Find out more about our work on our Facebook page at facebook.com/charitableroots